The building and organizer of the volunteers, said the library’s staff would work together to make it accessible by the volunteer-run team.

According to Caldwell, the water bill (for the electricity bill, a sum totaling $44 last month)

Those rates also give us for the gas used to heat the facility. The funds acquired through these costs, however, are not enough to cover the $1100 monthly water bill.

“We have a coffee sale that we do work parties with that work parties with the electric bill,” Caldwell said.

She said the donations from Mike Thomas and Jim Flukinger now make it possible to pay that bill. The specific amount the two donated to Caldwell provides the amount needed to pay the water bill.

“It’s just amazing since we started the library just to see the generosity on all sorts of levels,” she said.

Both of the councilors decided to donate their stipends after the city would not legally reduce the water rate. Caldwell wanted to give back to both Thomas and Flukinger for their donations.

Strong advice

Keynote speaker Mack Strong will share his experience and philosophy of being strong in mind and body, and taking care of one’s overall well-being. The former Seattle Seahawk fullback and assistant running back coach was sidelined by a career-ending neck injury after 14 years with the Seahawks, but he remains a force to reckon with in the arena of men’s health.
